The Student Recreation Center serves record numbers as University closes

By BRANDI BARHITE
The BG News

With Wood County still in a level three snow emergency, the University closed yesterday morning. The last time classes were cancelled for a full day was Jan. 14, 1992.

Commuters sighed in relief that they would not have to make the icy trip, while many on-campus students suffering from "dorm-fever" made their way over to the Student Recreation Center (SRC).

"There was an unbelievable amount of people here today," Andrea Lair, SRC pro-shop worker, said. "There were between 450 and 500 people here every hour. We were running out of racquets and lockers."

Nicole Buttermore, who works at the SRC's front desk, said yesterday the Center had close to record-breaking numbers with aerobic classes and basketball courts being the most crowded.

Laura Lotta, student aerobic instructor, said she had never seen so many people at the SRC.

She added the center is an emergency building and has to remain open in case students needed to relocate to it.

Those who did not go to the SRC found other ways to entertain themselves.

Ryan Garity, a freshman undecided major, said he went over to his friend's house and watched television all day.

Katie Bakeman, a freshman education major, also watched television since the early morning.

"I got up at 8:30 a.m. for class and I found out that we didn't have school, so I ate breakfast and I have been in my room watching television the rest of the day," she said.

Other students decided to do activities in groups. Michelle Love, a Founders Hall resident advisor, said the third floor played the game Taboo all afternoon. She added that Founders was quiet until noon because everyone was taking advantage of cancelled classes for extra sleep.

Another student said she decided to just hang out with her friends in her dorm room.

"We sat in my room all day," Stacey Smith, a sophomore art therapy major, said. "I didn't even shower."

Other students were just glad to stay out of the cold weather.

"The sidewalks were really bad," John Sammon, a sophomore, business major said. "They would plow, but there was still ice underneath the snow."

Becky Barko, a sophomore music major, said the whole week had been a nightmare and she was glad the University decided to close.

Some students did not have the luxury of having no classes. University students who travel to the Medical College of Ohio still had to make the trip to Toledo.

Amanda Zeller, a junior physical therapy major, said it was disappointing not having the day off, but the trip to Toledo was manageable.

"It was slippery, but Toledo was not that bad," she said. "Bowling Green could have been better though."

Churches secure BG's homeless

By NANCY GRIFFITH
The BG News

It is a bleak and frigid night. Do you have somewhere warm to stay?

Thanks to local social services and churches many homeless people in Bowling Green and Wood County have someplace to stay.

Gay Malon, the Social Services Director at the Department of Human Services, said, "The Department of Human Services role in the community is to keep people staying where they live."

The Department of Human Services offers transitional housing or a week in a motel for people recently evicted from their homes.

The Wood County Salvation Army Social Services also offers services to recently evicted families.

"Most people that are evicted from their apartments usually stay with family or friends in this area. Each month we do see an average of seven to ten families that need temporary housing," Carol Bettis, the Human Services Worker for the Salvation Army Social Services, said.

Home Aid is a coalition of social workers from many of the social agencies in Bowling Green and Wood County. Bettis is a member of Home Aid and explained Home Aid as another outlet to help people in Bowling Green and Wood County.

University ready to celebrate MLK, Jr. Day

By STEFANIE
SIZEMORE
The BG News

No school on Monday means a lot of extra sleep for many students, but why sleep when there is so much going on to celebrate Martin Luther King Jr. Day?

The events start this Friday with the 10th annual tribute to King held in Bowling Green city chambers at the city's administration services building on North Church Street. This event is sponsored by the City of Bowling Green Human Relations Commission, the Chamber of Commerce, and the mayor's office.

The event will kick off at 7:15 a.m., then be repeated again at 8:15 a.m. Guest speaker Solomon Davidoff will be speaking on the theme of "Strengthening our community by valuing our differences."

Davidoff is a part-time instructor for the department of ethnic studies, and is completing a doctorate in American Culture studies. He has recently presented academic work at the National Pop Culture Association, and is preparing chapters for the Columbia Companion for American History on Film and History Highway.

On Friday at 5:00 p.m. there will be an opening reception for "Breaking the Silence" at the Toledo Museum of Art in the Community gallery. This will be a display of BGSU's students' free expressions on the topics of race and ethnicity.

The reception will be held to launch the exhibit, to give credit to the students who were involved and to establish a partnership between Toledo and Bowling Green as they enter into inter-city dialogues around the issues of race and ethnicity.

This reception will be the beginning of a series of events in honor of Martin Luther King who in his time urged community members to "break the silence" and speak out.

Lorna Gonsalves-Pinto, director of diversity initiatives, is running this event.

"Students should be applauded for participating in this challenging project. An uncomfortable silence has surrounded the issues of race and racism in our country, and we cannot move ahead until we confront and deal with these issues," Gonsalves-Pinto said.

Racial issues are very important, and according to Gon-

Arguments flung as Clinton's trial begins in Senate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Opening their case in the first presidential impeachment trial since 1868, House prosecutors told senators today that President Clinton had committed "egregious and criminal" acts in concealing his affair with Monica Lewinsky and should be removed from office.

"We are here today because President William Jefferson Clinton decided to put himself above the law — not once, not twice but repeatedly," Rep. F. James Sensenbrenner, R-Wis., said in making the opening argument for the 13 Republican prosecutors who seek to oust Clinton for perjury and obstruction of justice.

Arguing before a silent jury of 100 senators, Sensenbrenner said a conviction of Clinton — requiring two-thirds of the senators — would send a message to all future presidents and public servants that lying under oath will not be tolerated.

Arguing from the Senate lectern in front of Chief Justice William Rehnquist, Sensenbrenner said of Clinton: "He has not owned up to the false testimony, the stonewalling and legal hairsplitting and obstructing the courts from finding the truth. In doing so, he has turned his affair into a public wrong."

"For these actions he must be held accountable to the only constitutional means the country has available: the difficult and painful process of impeachment."

The president was away from the trial, traveling across the Potomac to Alexandria, Va., for a crime prevention event before departing for a trip to New York to encourage Wall Street to invest more in minority interests. On Wednesday, he had said he trusted senators to do "the right thing."

The White House said today the House case is based on political revenge, not law and that Clinton would not testify as some House prosecutors have suggested he should.

"I don't think the founders intended a party that is in the majority in the Congress could remove a president at their whim based on partisan political differences," Press Secretary Joe Lockhart said.

House Judiciary Committee chairman Henry Hyde, the lead prosecutor, said the House had impeached Clinton simply because he had violated his oath to tell the truth and uphold the

What does it take for the University to close down for a day?

Commuters driving on ice ridden roads and swerving into ditches? Students getting frostbite walking from Founders to University Hall?

That's what we want to know, given the past 48 hours at BGSU.

Lucas County and Wood County were on snow emergency level two Wednesday morning, yet the University persisted in staying open. For students who lived on campus that was not such grim news, but for those who had a 20 minute commute, or worse an hour drive, found themselves risking their safety and their automobiles to attend class.

Many commuters were frustrated that the University was being so ambivalent to their needs. Even more frustrating was the fact that Charles Middleton, vice president and provost, said the University does not close the University if commuters cannot get to BG and that they only close if the campus conditions are a threat to those walking to and from campus. The motto "Students First" seems to be losing its significance amidst this winter storm.

The News believes that the University did not take into consideration the off-campus students who had to make the treacherous drive to attend classes. Sure, the University administrators will say commuters are excused from classes if the weather does not warrant driving. But again, what service is this to students? If classes continue, those unable to attend will find themselves falling behind, which is especially detrimental in the beginning of the semester.

Eventually the University did close Wednesday evening and then all of Thursday, but this was too little and too late for the students who had already made the trip to BG on Wednesday. And given that Thursday's conditions seemed identical to Wednesday's, it begs the question, why the change in policy?

It also seems strange that the University closed on Mon., Jan. 4, 1999 to ensure the safety of the faculty and staff, yet the University didn't close until late Wednesday to protect the thousands of students.

Winter storms are not rare, but a storm of this caliber is and it would only make sense if the University would remember that not everyone lives in a dorm.

Binge drinking not a problem

"I feel sorry for people who don't drink. When they wake up in the morning, that's the best they are going to feel all day." - Frank Sinatra

What is with the binge drinking kick everyone is on lately? Everywhere I turn, someone is complaining about someone else drinking too much or some other problem with alcohol. Don't get me wrong. I don't advocate irresponsible drinking in any way, but get real.

Bowling Green is a college town. And like most every other college towns there are bars and, oddly enough, people who drink. We all know that hundreds of people frequent these establishments in town every week. What are they doing there? They're sure as hell going so they can pay for over priced beers for the sheer joy of emptying their wallets.

They go there to drink, get wasted and meet people (usually someone of the opposite sex). We all know this, so quit complaining. It's not going to stop.

Columnist

Jeff Gill

Now, last December, in a three-part series that ran in The News about he binge drinking, there was a story about a young boy and a misfortune that happened to him. His parents planted an evergreen tree for him after his first birthday. This past Fall, a group of drunken University students cut down the tree.

I have a few problems with this implication alone. As far as the article stated, there were no eyewitnesses to the incident. So how do we know that the perpetrators were University students? They could have been Bowling Green high schoolers or just a group of townies. This may be a college town, as I stated previously, but 10,000+ people who live here are not students. And because there were a few empty beer cans in the area, the vandals that did this were presumed drunk.

Let's get back to the main subject. Binge drinking is defined as five or more alcoholic beverages in a row for men and four in a row for women. Basically, binge drinking means drinking to get drunk. What else does everyone do?

Don't misunderstand me to be saying that every time I touch a beer or cocktail to my lips, my plan is to get hammered. When I am hanging out with my friends, though, at a party or a bar, chances are I'm going to get wasted and stumble home.

Have you ever gone to a party or a bar where everyone is having a good ol' drunken time and you're completely sober? I don't know about everyone else, but I don't like it much. Drunk people are assholes. I'm sure that I'm not very much fun to sober people (or most drunk people for that matter) when I'm wasted, but I don't care. If I'm having fun, screw you. Or better yet, have a drink with me. I'll become more tolerable and you'll start having a good time. Hell, I might even pay for it.

A friend of mine and I were talking last semester about the whole subject. We both had the same opinion. If you're someone who can't control your liquor, break the law in a drunken spell, or just go insane after a few beers or cocktails, you should seek help. I believe that anything that someone does under the influence, they would do sober. But the thing is that those are the bad ones and not everyone is like that. These people ruin it for the rest of us.

I don't know what I'd do on the weekend if I didn't drink. To some of you, that may sound sad, but to me it isn't. I like drinking and I like getting wasted. So quit spoiling my fun.

Clinton deserving of Impeachment

I have read the Thursday Editorial in The News which does not agree with the impeachment of our President. This editorial is filled with the same, liberal, left wing ideology that claims at the same time to be nonpartisan. I will now explain the ineptness and the lack of cohesiveness in the arguments presented in this editorial.

First, the editorial leads the reader to believe that the trial is only about sex in the first paragraph. The writer(s) then proceed to discuss sex in every other line. The only people who think this is only about sex are those in support of the President and NOT in support of the Constitution and the laws of this country. Please remember that the issues are perjury and obstruction of justice.

The editorial continues to ease its argument on whether "we" have a right to ask about his sex life. Well, "we" did not ask this question, but rather this was asked in a grand jury testimony. The editorial seems to claim that a court of law is a sanctuary for certain ideologies. The author(s) has not been to a real live court room where discussions of sex, murder, and mutilation are common. This line of questioning is not out of the ordinary, but rather what any citizen of this country would be subjected to. The result of this questioning is the revelation of the truth. As for the behaviour of previous presidents, they did not lie under oath about their relationships.

Guest Column

While the issue of whether the relationship with Ms. Lewinsky is harassment is open for debate, it is obvious that this is both an unethical and immoral code of conduct. By being Commander-in-Chief of our armed forces and being subjected to the same standards of those whom he may send into battle, he would be forced to leave the service. He has made the U.S. a big joke throughout the world. How is he supposed to gain the respect of other foreign leaders when he has no ethical conduct?

As for being a role model and setting a good example, isn't that what our leaders should be expected to do? Shouldn't we hold the people who have to make such important decisions that affect hundreds of millions of people here in the U.S. and billions throughout the world to higher standard? Yes, we should and it is about time that we do. While it may not be a crime to be a bad role model, it is a crime to commit perjury which is a felony offense. An offense, that left unpunished, chips away at the cornerstone of our judicial system which will lead to a differing standards.

I just hope that the writer(s) end up on the wrong side of one of these standards in the future to realize the result of their thinking. By eroding this common standard that is applied to the rich and the poor alike, a crime against this country has been committed: a crime, if left unpunished, that is far greater than selling secrets to our enemies. This is not the type of society in which so many people have fought, sacrificed and died for. We owe it to those before us and those after us to uphold that which is right.

For the record, we did not know of his relationship with Gennifer Flowers, since he lied about this during his campaign. Furthermore, if even the writer(s) of this editorial do not believe that he is honest with the cruise missile attacks on Iraq, how can he be an effective leader? This editorial is then in support of a president who has ordered the killing of others in order to fulfill their own personal agenda. Talk about being a hypocrite.

Finally, I am disgusted that people have grown to believe that politics requires lies and that we should accept this as being okay. I will not accept being lied to by someone whom we have elected. Otherwise, this will lead to governing by a few over the masses with no concern for the truth. I guess this would support the idea that lying under oath is okay so long as it supports your own political agenda. By the way, we would not be having this discussion if Clinton was attending to the business of the people instead of having phone sex at four in the morning. Is this your idea of getting down to business?

Michael Howick is a guest columnist. He can be reached at mhowick@bgnet.bgsu.edu.

Letters to the Editor policy

Do you agree with all of this? The BG News encourages all student, faculty, administrative and local input from any and all people who have a strong opinion. The BG News will not discriminate upon letters solely based on a person's opinion. We offer two avenues to people wishing to express his or her opinion.

■ Letters to the Editor. Letters are to be less than 500 words (less than two typed, double-spaced pages). These are usually in response to a current issue on the BGSU campus or Bowling Green area.

■ Guest Columns. Longer pieces (between 600-800 words) can be submitted as Guest Columns. Guest columns will be subject to space limitations and considered based on topic relevance and quality.

Anonymous letters are not encouraged. The News will not print any letter or Guest column without being able to verify the author. This will be accomplished only if the author submits his or her name, academic major and year, phone number and/or e-mail address. The News will consider printing a letter or column as anonymous only under specific situations in which the author may have valid reasons to remain anonymous.

To submit a Guest Column or Letter, bring a written copy to 210 West Hall and leave it in the Opinion Editor's mailbox. Or, send it on e-mail to bgnews@bgnet.bgsu.edu and give it the subject, "Letter to the Editor".

Space limitations may prevent The News from printing all letters received. The News reserves the right to edit any and all letters. The Editorial Board acknowledges all entries submitted for publication.

Martin Luther King Day will give all University students a day off. What do you think about that? Should it even be a holiday? Do students and faculty observe it as it should be? E-mail us at bgnews.bgsu.edu or send your opinion to 210 West Hall, c/o Opinion Editor.

BGasku answers important student questions.

Q: I'm thinking of taking one of my general education core courses S/U. How long do I have to make changes in my spring schedule?

A: The deadline to drop, add or change grade option is January 17. You can do this by phone utilizing the STAR-90 system. Or if you wish to, you can also make schedule changes in person at the Office of Registration and Records. In addition to regular business hours, they will also be open on Saturday, January 16 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Sunday, January 17 from 1 to 5 p.m. If you go home for the holiday weekend, you can make changes to STAR-90 from home.

Q: I'm optimistic that I can graduate at the end of this semester. When do I apply for graduation?

A: You must apply for graduation through your college office by 5 p.m. on January 22, 1999.

Q: I'm concerned that I may get snowed in on campus and not be able to go home as often this semester. How can I find out about the activities on campus?

A: There is a biweekly insert in The BG News called "Campus Buzz" that can fill you in on what's going on at BGSU. You can also access the "Calendar of Events" site from the BGSU Explorer page on the World Wide Web.

Q: I am a senior. Is there an office on campus that can help me look for a job?

A: The Office of Career Services can assist you with resume writing, job hunt strategies, and interviewing techniques. There is also an on-campus recruiting program where you can interview with employers. The office is located in room 360 Saddlehorn Student Services.

Ohio State closes because of weather

COLUMBUS (U-WIRE) — At 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Ohio State shut down, because of hazardous weather conditions, for only the second time since 1970.

After the news spread Wednesday that classes had been canceled, many students flocked to busses and cars, creating congestion.

Not everyone seemed to care.

"I'm done for the day, so it doesn't really matter," said Robb Webb, sophomore military history major.

The procedure for emergency closings because of weather conditions involves administrative consultations. The university president makes the final decision.

OSU President William "Brit" Kirwan said he decided to close the university because officials had declared a level three snow emergency in Delaware County and could possibly declare similar conditions in Franklin County.

Under a level three snow emergency, travel is forbidden unless absolutely necessary and motorists could be arrested.

Kirwan made his decision following a conference call on Wednesday with other university administrators.

"It just seemed wise, given the huge likelihood of absolutely terrible roads this evening and afternoon, to give [everyone] a head start on getting home," Kirwan said.

Highway deaths

Fatalities increase in "fast" states

WASHINGTON (AP) — The adage is "speed kills." A new study by a leading insurance group shows that more speed kills more people.

The Insurance Institute of Highway Safety reported Thursday that highway deaths have increased roughly 15 percent in states that have increased their speed limits since Congress abolished the national 55-mph limit in late 1995.

In states that have maintained the old limit, deaths have remained fairly constant.

"It's clear from this study that the current round of speed limit increases, like increases on rural interstates in the 1980s, is costing hundreds of lives per year," said institute president Brian O'Neill.

The National Motorists Association, a Wisconsin-based drivers organization that fought for the speed limit increase, concedes that highway deaths may be up. It maintains, however, that deaths have not increased in proportion to increased driving spurred by low gasoline prices and the booming economy.

Iraq increases hostility towards Kuwait

The Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq escalated tensions with Kuwait today, questioning the legitimacy of the emirate and saying its "land and coasts" belong to the Iraqi people.

The harsh words from Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz appeared to be part of an ongoing series of verbal attacks against Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, which Baghdad blames for delaying an Arab League meeting on the Iraqi crisis.

Iraq had hoped that during the meeting, now rescheduled for Jan. 24, it would be able to capitalize on popular protests in the Arab world in the aftermath of the Dec. 16-19 U.S.-British airstrikes against Iraq.

Aziz described Kuwait's borders as "a bombshell that may explode in the future." The comments were made in a front-page commentary, the last in a series of four articles Aziz has written for al-Thawra, the newspaper of the ruling Baath Party.

Kuwait complained today to the Arab League about Aziz's comments, saying "they are full of lies and deliberate fabrications of history."

Iraq invaded and annexed Kuwait in 1990. Its forces were driven out of Kuwait by a U.S.-led coalition in the 1991 Gulf War.

The invasion prompted the United Nations to impose sweeping trade sanctions against Iraq, which have devastated the country's economy.

Iraq also said today it would reject any solution to its current standoff with the United Nations that does not include a lifting of the sanctions.

France has put a proposal before the U.N. Security Council that calls for the lifting the oil embargo and the imposition of a new monitoring system aimed at preventing Baghdad from acquiring new weapons of mass destruction.

"Sanctions against Iraq in all their facets should be lifted immediately," the Iraqi leadership said in a statement after President Saddam Hussein met with his three top aides.

Plane crash kills 4 airmen in Germany

The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany — Rescuers called off their search today for two U.S. airmen killed when a U.S. military refueling plane crashed and burned near the German-Dutch border. Bodies of the two other victims were found earlier in the day.

NATO Brig. Gen. Klaus Peter Stieglitz said the missing bodies were believed to have burned when the plane exploded into flames immediately after it crashed.

The KC-135 Stratotanker, assigned temporarily to a NATO base near the northwestern German town of Geilenkirchen, was attempting to land after a refueling run when it crashed at about 1:30 p.m. EST Wednesday, about two miles from the base.

A crew of four was on board, and all were presumed killed, said base spokesman Johan Higmennbrt.

The cause of the crash was unknown, but Higmennbrt said the plane had touched down, then took off again immediately, indicating a problem. A team of U.S. military crash investigators began work today, he said.

Control tower reports said the plane tipped toward the right before crashing 385 yards north of the runway and 165 yards from the nearest house. No one on the ground was injured.

It took more than 100 Dutch and German firefighters about three hours to extinguish the burning plane, which can carry up to 83,000 pounds of fuel.

Flags flew at half-staff at the base today, and all flights were suspended. Normally, 15 reconnaissance planes and two refueling planes take off from the base every day.

KING

salvage -Pinto schools and colleges are appropriate channels for teaching students to critically examine the issue of race and to share their assessments with the general public."

"Through the museum exhibit, Bowling Green State University is taking a step in the right direction," she said.

The events on campus will be getting started on Monday, January 18. At 4 p.m. a candlelight march in honor of King will be getting underway starting in the Amani Room in the Commons. The march is sponsored by the Black Student Union, the Board of Black Cultural Activities and the Office of Student Activities.

The march will begin with a prayer. Senior gerontology major Roschell Ashley, president of the Black Student Union, says the prayer will tie in King's links to the church and his days as a Baptist minister.

Marchers will start in the Amani Room and then proceed down Wooster Street to the front of the Student Union. During the march everyone will be singing songs in remembrance of the

Bowling Green's gospel choir will be performing during the march and the closing ceremony.

"We will be handing out song sheets to everyone, so everyone involved can join in on the great celebration," Ashley said.

At 4:30 p.m. the closing ceremony will begin in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom. Besides the special performance of the BGSU gospel choir, there will be a proclamation by the mayor of Bowling Green, Wes Hoffman, readings from King's works and other dynamic speakers. The mayor's proclamation will be the opening for black history month.

Ashley commented on Martin Luther King Day, "Usually everywhere there are events in honor of King, but I really get frustrated when I see people not celebrating the day. Many students just think it is another day off school, and a day to sleep in. We are having the march on the actual day to remind people that it is a day off work or school, but it is a day to remember and honor a great leader."

According to Ashley, Martin Luther King Jr. Day is not just a day to honor King.

"This holiday is a day to honor all the civil rights leaders, and the civil rights movement in general. King broke the ice for many things to occur. People need to appreciate and expand from King's ideologies," she said.

The march and closing ceremony are open to everyone.

"This event is open to the entire community. Whether you are black, white, blue, Chinese or Indian, we invite you to come join this joyous celebration in honor of Martin Luther King Jr.," Ashley said.

Monday morning there will also be a Martin Luther King, Jr. annual holiday breakfast. This breakfast begins at 7:30 a.m. at the Robinson Jr. High School in Toledo.

U.S. Congressman John Conyers (D-Mich.), will be speaking at this event which is being presented by the Board of Community Relations and the City of Toledo. This breakfast is free to the public, and for more information call (419) 245-1121.

On Tuesday, Jan. 19, at 5 p.m. there will be a Multicultural Activities Martin Luther King holiday program in the Ballroom. Also on Tuesday there will be a Martin Luther King scholarship recognition ceremony at the Center for Multicultural and Academic Institutions. The time is yet to be determined.

On Wednesday events continue in honor of King. There will be a tribute entitled: "The Black Church in America: Civil Rights and Religion."

This event consists of a discussion of the impact of the civil rights movement on the black church. This tribute is sponsored by the Libraries and Learning Resources Committee, and we be held at 10 a.m. in the Pallister Conference Room in Jerome Library.

All of these events are free and open to the public.

HOMELESS

"We have raised money for the Department of Human Services' program Second Chance. The Second Chance program keeps people from being evicted from their apartments by providing rent money to these people," Bettis said.

"Another program that Home Aid runs is 'WSOS.' This program takes twenty families and works with them for two months to help keep them in apartments and homes," she said.

Home Aid also rents a room year-round at Buckeye Budget to house people in emergencies. Two agencies need to recommend a family before they can be housed in Buckeye Budget, Bettis said.

tis said.

"Once a family is recommended they can stay for two weeks free, but the family has to use all the agencies possible so that they can get back on their feet," she said.

"If a family is not local and does not have children enrolled in a local school, they are transported to the Findlay or Toledo Shelter. Or we contact the Link. The Link is open twenty-four hours a day and is the first call for help," Bettis said.

Marcie Skirvin, who is in charge of the volunteer program at the Link said, "We provide shelter for three nights in a local Wood County home for people that become evicted, and we give referrals to the food pantry or vouchers to restaurants for these families."

She also added that the Link is the after-hours service for Bowling Green and Wood County.

"People can come to us twenty-four hours a day," Skirvin said.

Many of the local churches in Bowling Green help with the housing and feeding of local families.

"Saint Thomas More assists people with rent and occasionally puts people up for a night in a local motel," said Sarah Bishop, who is in charge of volunteers at the church.

Anyone in need of food can go to Martha's Kitchen located at the First United Methodist Church on Wooster street on Friday nights from 4:30 to 6:00 p.m.

"Anyone who wants a delicious homemade meal can come," Bettis said.

"Eleven local churches make up Martha's Kitchen," Bishop said. "They rotate each week. The church members donate and cook the food. On typical nights we have thirty-five to fifty people come to eat."

The Red Cross will assist in Bowling Green and Wood County by starting a shelter only in special occasions, such as ten families becoming snowbound or if Interstate 75 would be closed. Once either of those happen the Red Cross will set up a shelter to help those people, as a public service.

Study confirms Gulf War vets' illness

The Associated Press

LONDON — A new study of British troops has found that Persian Gulf War veterans have a rate of general ill health at least twice as high as forces sent to Bosnia or those who stayed home.

The study published this week in The Lancet, a British medical journal, confirms what previously has been reported in studies of Canadian and U.S. veterans — that going to the Persian Gulf in 1991 affected troops' health, but no definable disease could be found.

The study of 8,195 soldiers, sailors and pilots is the largest of symptoms to date and the first to compare Gulf War vets with troops who served in another hazardous conflict around the same time.

The men, half of whom had retired from the military, filled out questionnaires about their current health.

They all reported a variety of 59 ailments, including chronic fatigue, hair loss, rashes, headaches, joint pain, memory loss, heart problems and nervous system disorders.

There was hardly any difference between the Bosnia troops and men who served at the time of the Gulf War but were not deployed.

Regardless of the ailment, however, vets who served in the Persian Gulf were about twice as likely to complain of it than the other two groups studied, the researchers said.

"The evidence is unequivocal that going to the gulf affects your health," said Dr. Simon Wessely, one of the researchers from King's College at the University of London.

The researchers don't know why ailments were more common in Gulf War vets, but said the study shows there is no single cause, either physical or psychological, and that attempts to look for a "smoking gun" will not succeed.

"We have to look at a multitude of causes and their interactions," Wessely said.

The researchers also found that hazards of war — ranging from using pesticides and seeing dead bodies to getting diesel fuel on your skin — were linked to more symptoms, regardless of whether the men had served in the gulf or somewhere else.

The study did find a slight increase in ill health in those who had vaccines against biological threats such as anthrax or plague. Receiving multiple vaccinations against routine infections also was linked to a modest increase in illness, but only in the Persian Gulf group and not in Bosnia.

In an editorial in the Lancet, a scientist with the National Institutes of Health called the study one of the most definitive conducted to date and said it added weight to the argument that no unique "Gulf War Syndrome" exists.

In his editorial, Stephen E. Straus, chief of the laboratory of clinical investigation at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, drew parallels between the ailments cited by Gulf War vets and soldiers who fought in World War I.

"Although the possibility of some still unappreciated environmental factor cannot be dismissed entirely," he wrote, "the Gulf War seems to differ from others only in a quantitative sense and in the intensity of public discourse about it."

But Dr. Robert Haley, an epidemiologist at University of Texas Medical Center who believes a particular "Gulf War syndrome" exists, criticized the research. He said the scientists' questions were too vague, so it was not surprising they found the same symptoms in all of the veterans.

"They found questions that by their nature are not unique. They didn't ask the right questions," he said.

Haley's research on a small number of patients has previously concluded that some Gulf War veterans suffer from distinct symptom clusters caused by chemical poisoning and that some may suffer neurological damage from nerve gas or pesticides.

CLINTON

laws of the nation.

"You are seated in this historic chamber not to embark on some great legislative debate ... but to listen to the evidence as those who must sit in judgment," Hyde said in an introduction of the House prosecution team. "These managers will explain how egregious and criminal the conduct alleged in the articles of impeachment is," Hyde promised.

"In many ways the case you will consider is about those two words — 'I do,'" Hyde said.

One week after the 100 senators were sworn in as jurors, Rehnquist, banged the proceeding back to order. "The Senate will convene as a court of impeachment," he intoned at 1:04 p.m. EST.

The Rev. Lloyd Ogilvie, the Senate chaplain, offered a brief prayer that the senators would engage in "nonpartisan patriotism." The prosecutors then were given the floor to make their case that Clinton's offenses were high crimes and misdemeanors requiring his removal from office.

Rejecting White House arguments that the offenses did not meet the constitutional standards for removing a president, Sensenbrenner noted that the Founding Fathers explicitly considered bribery as an impeachable offense and that perjury carries an identical penalty under statutes.

"Perjury is the twin brother of bribery. ... It follows that perjury ... be considered among the high crimes and misdemeanors the framers intended to be grounds for impeachment," he argued.

The senators sat quietly at their polished wooden desks, barred by trial rules from speaking in the chamber where they ordinarily debate. A few House members were seated at the rear of the chamber, and the public galleries were full.

The president's seven-member legal team, led by White House Counsel Charles F.C. Ruff, were seated a few feet to the side of the lectern where House Republicans made their case.

In an impeachment drama dominated by partisan struggle, the two sides made an effort today to display bipartisanship. Majority Leader Trent Lott and other Republicans shook hands with Ruff. Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., greeted Hyde, R-Ill., with a hearty "Mr. Chairman — How are you?"

Lawmakers entering the Senate from its main entrance were greeted by the blinding flashes of three dozen cameras.

Before they opened their case, House managers filed a brief saying they needed trial witnesses to prove the president should be removed from office. They argued Clinton's defense defied "evidence as well as common sense."

"To the extent that President Clinton's trial memorandum raises issues of credibility, those issues are best resolved by live testimony subject to cross examination," the prosecutors said. Senators won't decide whether to allow witnesses until after both sides make their opening arguments at the trial.

Among the witnesses the prosecutors are considering calling are the president and Ms. Lewinsky, House officials said.

In a freezing drizzle, 14 people had lined up outside the Capitol by midmorning for a chance to view at least a few minutes of the trial. The Senate set aside 50 seats in the gallery for the public, and those seats were to be rotated every 15 minutes or so.

"It's crazy. That 15 minutes better be great," said Al Sitterson, 32, who drove in from the Virginia suburbs to get in line at 5:20 a.m., dressed in heavy winter garb. He had hoped to end up with a ticket as a souvenir but was told he couldn't.

In their final legal brief, anticipating a Clinton motion to dismiss the case early in the trial, the House prosecutors argued that the Senate "has never granted a motion to dismiss or strike an article of impeachment."

Q: WILLIAM JEFFERSON CLINTON, Do you solemnly swear that the testimony you are about to give in this matter will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

A: I do.

Internet community more diverse, less affluent

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — People going online today to find news or pursue other interests look increasingly like America as a whole — they're less computer-savvy, less affluent and include more women than the band of early Internet devotees, according to a poll released Thursday.

That more mainstream audience is interested in more mainstream topics than those first drawn to the Internet, indicates the survey of American adults by the Pew Research Center for the People and the Press.

Sending or receiving electronic mail is the most popular activity for the 41 percent of adults who now use the Internet. And weather — that most common of topics — is the type of news they seek most often.

In 1996, about 23 percent used the Internet, and news items related to technology were the top draw.

"The message here is that more (people) on the Internet does not necessarily mean more of the same," said Andrew Kohut, director of the Pew poll.

The survey found women have overtaken men among newcomers. Of people who said they began using the Internet within the previous year, 52 percent were women and 48 percent men. That's close to the breakdown of the population as a whole.

Middle-aged and middle-income people of both sexes are also coming to the Internet in increased numbers, as are people with less than a college education. Among Internet newcomers, 40 percent never attended college, and 23 percent have household incomes below $30,000 a year.

"They are more middlebrow, they're less affluent," Kohut said.

The Internet was given life by eggheads — researchers, academics and bureaucrats who are among the best-educated people in America. The most significant change, said Kohut, is the broadening of the network's use to people who never attended college.

"This is a very different demographic pattern, and it's a very different use pattern," Kohut said.

Despite that rapid move to the mainstream, the 74 million Internet users in the United States are still generally younger, better-educated and more affluent than the population at large.

Overall, 80 percent of Internet users are under age 50, compared with 63 percent of all Americans, and 39 percent of Internet users are college graduates, compared with 22 percent of the nation at large, the survey indicated.

The nationwide telephone survey of 3,184 adults, taken in November, had a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points for the public as a whole and for Internet users. For smaller subgroups, the margin of error was 3.5 percentage points.

The survey found 35 percent of American adults use e-mail, up from 19 percent in 1996.

Among Internet news users, 64 percent said they looked for weather information online. In 1996, 47 percent sought out such information.

Old Man winter awakens

Snow, ice don't stop food service

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — OK, so it's snowing — again. Big deal. Let's punch the clock and get to work.

Many companies have taken that attitude throughout this month of miserable weather. Whether it's because of pride, habit or economic necessity, businesses have stayed open regardless of how much snow has been flying outside.

"No matter what happens, we just tough it out," Jim Pacino, owner of Deli-Wagon Food Service in suburban Cleveland, said Thursday. "I'm only 43, and I don't mean to sound like an old-timer, but I keep telling people it's been worse."

He's right, at least in Cleveland, where the record snowfall for January is 42.8 inches in 1978, according to the National Weather Service. As of Thursday, this city had stacked up 18.8 inches of snow this month.

That's kid stuff for Pacino, whose 15 trucks go out each day to factories and construction sites, selling coffee, doughnuts and lunches to the workers. Pacino said the weather hasn't stopped his drivers one day since the first storm hit on Jan. 2.

"I tell the drivers 'Just do the best you can. Slow down and take your time,'" Pacino said. "And every day I thank every driver for coming to work."

Sales pick up for Deli-Wagon at times like this because workers don't want to go out for lunch, he said. And in Pacino's cash-based business, "if we don't show up, we don't make any money," he said.

Business hasn't been so good during the storms for Steven Konrad, who runs the Arcade Shoe Shop in downtown Cleveland. Lunchtime crowds have slacked off but Konrad has come to work every day anyway.

"You have to maintain a certain level, you can't just be closed all the time," he said. "A gentleman might want to buy a pair of boots."

That same pride is part of what's kept Rodney Jones, a delivery truck driver, going this month.

Jones, of Parma, is on the road as much as 10 hours a day and has been leaving home 1 1/2 to two hours early to get to work by 7 a.m. His commute usually takes about 25 minutes.

Jogging to keep warm

A man who identified himself as "Sonny" jogs on a slippery mixture of ice and snow in Chamersburg, PA, Thurs. Jan. 14. South Central PA was hit with a winter snow storm that caused area school and business closings and hazardous traveling conditions.

Meals on Wheels continues despite weather

The Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Out in his 1979 pickup to deliver meals to shut-ins, Jim Lahr discovered a way to navigate the city's snowy side streets: Drive backward.

"There's no place to turn around when you get to the end, and you get stuck," he explained after stopping at the house of an 82-year-old woman. "When you back in at least you're facing in the right direction."

It's just one way people in this snow-savvy city have learned to adapt to the relentless winter of the past two weeks. Elsewhere, the unrelenting weather continued to wreak havoc, as public schools were closed today in parts of the Midwest and Northeast and freezing rain caused treacherous morning driving conditions.

Buffalo usually gets 93.2 inches of snow every year — that's more than 7 feet — but this winter season started off fairly dry. In this month alone, the city has recorded nearly 53 inches, including 5 inches on Wednesday, a record for Jan. 13.

The snow resumed falling

"It's part of life. Life does not stop when it snows," during the rush hour commute this morning, and up to 6 inches were predicted for today.

Marcie Lahr

There's little hibernating going on. Aside from a driving ban that shut down the city Jan. 4 and a daily list of school closings and meeting cancellations, the city and its suburbs have remained open and functioning.

southwestern counties.

The snow closed airports and highways, collapsed roofs, canceled classes and sent some workers home early.

U.S. Postal Service said today that it was declaring a snow emergency and overhauling normal delivery procedures in Detroit.

"We're going to beep horns going down streets and ask people to get their mail, let us park in their driveways," postal spokeswoman Diana Pritchard said. "This is never-before stuff."

This isn't in the regs book."

The constant barrage of winter storms hasn't caused problems for everyone.

In Milwaukee, which has received its biggest January snowfall total in a decade with 32 inches, snow-removal worker Orlando Tirado actually looked forward to the bitter weather.

"It's fun, if you dress properly for it," said Tirado. "As long as your feet and hands stay warm."

"I love it or else I wouldn't be doing it."

Love story gives Shakespeare film 20th century appeal

By LIZ PECEK
The BG News

Few of us can relate to the time that Shakespeare lived. In fact, many of us cannot comprehend Shakespeare's writings, let alone understand people who lived in that time. However, "Shakespeare in Love" actually brings you into the life of William Shakespeare in the 16th century. The English accent (minus the Elizabethan dialect) is easy to understand, and the characters seem at times American. (I don't think that Shakespeare ever said, "God I'm good.")

Elderly people always talk of the good old days. Well, what about the times of Shakespeare? Do you consider constant duels for the lady you love fun? How about being denied marriage to her because her parents sold her to another man? What about regular brawls in the local pub that end in someone's death? Life seems a lot tougher then than it is now ... it also makes one think that we are currently in the "good" days now instead of then.

Adultery, love, lust, poetry,

Shakespeare in Love

Starring: Gwyneth Paltrow, Joseph Fiennes, Ben Affleck
NOW says: Shakespeare finds his muse, it's Gwyneth Paltrow.

4 stars: movie, then movie again

duality, death, farce and even star-crossed lovers are present in this film. It's just as action-packed as any action film. But it is certainly different from the rest because it takes us to a time that we do not know and helps us to learn a little of the era while getting some laughs in.

An avid playgoer, Lady Viola (Gwyneth Paltrow) falls in love with the poetic style of Will Shakespeare's plays. Upon first sight of Viola, Will (Joseph Fiennes) falls in love as he never has before. He meets Viola at a time when he is having writer's block (imagine Shakespeare having writer's block!), but it is she who is his inspiration for his current work, "Romeo and Ethel: the Pirate's Daughter" (it later becomes "Romeo and Juliet").

Their love is so pure and simple ... if only it weren't for the haughty and disgusting Lord Wessox, the man that her father has sold her to for marriage. Viola doesn't let her betrothal get in the way of pursuing her interest in the arts or in Will. She dresses as a man and becomes "Lord Kent," an actor in Will's newest play ("Romeo and Juliet"). Will grows ever fonder of Viola, who is to be married shortly. Her presence in his life causes his creativity and passion for writing to grow.

From the authentic costumes to the witty wisecracks, "Shakespeare in Love" appeals to a wide range of viewers. Gwyneth Paltrow and Joseph Fiennes were spectacular, convincingly playing the parts of two passionate lovers. In fact, all aspects of the movie are superb. I highly recommend that you give this one a try, even if you think that Shakespeare isn't your cup of tea. The reason: this is and isn't traditional Shakespeare. All of the traditional elements (costumes, customs) are there, but it's been modernized just a little ... the wisecracks are surprisingly 90s-compatible.

Italian Film Crosses Ocean

By TONY RECZNIK
The BG News

The 1997 Italian hit "La Vita è bella" ("Life Is Beautiful"), with a little help from Miramax, finally made it to American theaters this past December, and it was well worth the trip.

Roberto Benigni, probably best known in the States for his title role in 1993's The Son of the Pink Panther, wrote, starred and directed this Italian comedy/drama that demonstrates that its simple title can be true.

Benigni is Guido Orefice, a poor country boy who journeys with a friend to a much larger Tuscan town, in search of jobs with relatives in 1939. On this journey he briefly encounters Dora, played by Nicoletta Braschi, whom he refers to as "princess."

Upon arriving into town he discovers two things; that his Uncle and, played by Giustino Durano and his Uncle's business are constantly harassed by "vandals" because he is Jewish, and that Dora is a local schoolteacher.

Guido falls for his "princess," and courts her by constantly popping up at unexpected times. He convinces her that to receive anything in the world, all you have to do is ask. Dora calls off her engagement with her fiancé in favor of Guido and they promptly marry.

The story then skips ahead five years to the last months of World War II. Dora and Guido have had a child, Giosué, played by the adorable Giorgio Cantarini. Their marriage appears to be perfect until Guido, Giosué and Uncle are taken to a concentration camp. Dora, faced with her family being stolen from her, commits a supreme act of bravery and voluntarily follows.

Although the men and women in the camp are separated and the child is in constant mortal peril, Guido finds inventive ways to communicate with Dora, to hide Giosué, and to convince him the terrible place is only part of an elaborate game, a special contest to win a tank.

There are a variety of things about this film that an acquiring viewer should note; however two are prominent. One is that this movie contains a lot of heart, therefore one should come prepared with tissues, two is that due to the fact that the film is Italian, one should be prepared to read the dialogue.

However, an interesting scene in the film is when there are no subtitles, as American forces liberate the camp. You get to hear what Italians think we sound like, scary thing is its kind of a cross between President Clinton and Gomer Pile.

Life is Beautiful

Starring: Roberto Benigni, Nicoletta Braschi
We say: Italian film strains the eyes with tears a subtitles, great but film prevails.

BG knocks out Akron 66-57

By PETE STELLA
The BG News

Coach Dan Dakich stressed all week in practice about the importance of defense and the importance of shutting down Akron guard Jami Bosley. His words obviously worked.

The Bowling Green men's basketball team cruised to a victory over Mid-American Conference foe Akron 66-57 last night at Anderson Arena. With the win, the Falcons move to 10-5 overall and 5-2 in the MAC. Akron fall to 9-5 overall and 3-3 in the MAC.

The Falcons got huge games from several of their key players. Anthony Stacey hit for 21 points, eight rebounds, and five steals despite having to leave twice due to injuries suffered during the game. Dave Esterkamp, whose biggest statistic was the excellent defense he played on Jami Bosley, scored 16 points and got four rebounds.

"Everyone contributed to the great defense and the win," coach Dan Dakich said. "I feel that Esterkamp did a great job on Bosley and Stacey showed his toughness, despite getting a little beat up though-out the game."

BG started off hot. They went on an 8-0 run to open the game that was highlighted by forward Kirk Cowan's dunk, which razed the home crowd. With 8:51 left in the first half, the Falcons were cruising with a 20-6 lead.

"In the first 10 minutes, they were killing us," Akron coach Dan Hipsher said. "They (BG) came out very aggressively and we were sort of had us playing on our heels for most of the first half. We then started using the back door cuts to get guys open but we could never really get over the hump to win the game."

Akron received big games from stars Jimmal Ball and Jami Bosley. Ball scored 23 points and pulled down four rebounds, with Bosley hitting for 15 points and grabbing 10 rebounds. Bosley's 15 points fall below his 21.4 points per game average and the 40 points that he scored against BG last February. His mediocre performance can only be attributed to the tough team defense that BG displayed during the entirety of the game.

"Coach Dakich preached all week about staying on top of Bosley and not letting him free," Esterkamp said. "All the guys worked hard to stop their offense and we played great team defense."

Stacey (see related story), who at one point was playing with cramps in his knees and a dislocated ring finger on his shooting hand, showed his toughness that he has showed the whole season.

"We played great defense today," Stacey said. "Anytime that you hold a team like this one that scores a lot to under 60 points, your bound to win the game."

Akron never really recovered from the early lead by BG but at several instances, they made

How many fingers does it take to shoot a basketball? For Anthony Stacey, only eight.

Well, five on one hand, two on the other plus three taped together.

In the midst of a second-half

stand against Akron, Stacey dislocated his ring finger diving for a ball.

"That was the nastiest as I've ever seen," BG coach Dan Dakich said. "My first inclination was to pull it, but I didn't want to split it."

Even with a shortage of fingers, the BG forward managed to score a basket, two free throws and grab a rebound. In 31 minutes of play he led the Falcons with 21 points and eight rebounds.

Nevermind the knee cramping that put him in the locker room at the 16:32 mark of the second half. He returned three minutes later, back in uniform.

"Stacey's just really good," Akron coach Dan Hipsher said. "He drove us, he worked us and actually I thought we did a helluva job on him after the first maybe ten-minute area. It was 22-6 and I think he had 13 of them."

Besides hitting the floor on many occasions scrapping for the ball, Stacey also hit 8 of 14 shots and 4 of 5 from the charity strip.

Known for his second-half efforts, Stacey used the beginning of the game against the Zips. From the opening tip BG started a 13-2 run that was keyed by seven Stacey points.

He also had five steals in the game. A few of those came from bouncing off the hardwood.

"He's a tough cookie," Hipsher said. "He's hard to handle."

But the finger and the knee were nothing new to the Elyria, Ohio native. His resumé of injuries include: a herniated back disk, ankle problems, a torn plantar fascia on his right foot, a dislocated shoulder and had a nagging hamstring pull earlier this year. Not to mention mononucleosis last year.

Yet, he's averaged 18.4 points and 5.4 rebounds per game (before the Akron game) and the Falcons are 5-2 in the conference

ND moves to 4th

The BG News

The Central Collegiate Hockey Association's top three spots seem to be well in hand for Michigan State, Michigan and Ohio State. It is the next four spots that are in flux.

Over the weekend, Notre Dame beat Bowling Green 4-1 and Miami 2-0 to move past Ferris State and into fourth place. The Bulldogs had dropped a pair of game at Michigan.

The Fighting Irish are sporting a 9-5-1 CCHA record good for 19 points. That's one more than 8-5-2 Ferris State has. Northern Michigan sits in sixth with a 8-8-0 record and Bowling Green is in seventh with 13.

The fourth place slot represents the final seed for home ice in the CCHA playoffs which are now 15 games away.

UND goalie Forrest Karr was named the CCHA's Defensive Player of the Week for his performance against BG and Miami. He allowed only one goal on 48 total shots.

Senior defenseman Benoit Cotnoir had a pair of goals in the Bowling Green game.

B.J. Adams and the Falcons will have a tough test this weekend.

Two weeks ago, the Irish beat the top-ranked North Dakota Fighting Sioux 4-3. Prior to the North Dakota game, UND had lost five games in a row.

Scoring leaders

Michigan State's Mike York had a six point weekend giving him the league lead in overall scoring. His totals are 14 goals and 17 assists - two more than Notre Dame's Ben Simon.

UND's Brian Urlick, Northern's Buddy Smith, BG's Dan Price and Ohio State's Hugo Boisvert are all tied for third with 27 points a piece.

Icers seek revenge

By WILLIAM R. SANDERSON
The BG News

As if the Falcon hockey team had not seen enough of the Michigan State Spartans last weekend, here they come again.

Less than a week after dropping a 3-1 decision in East Lansing last week, Bowling Green will play the Spartans again Friday and the Lake Superior State Lakers visit Saturday.

Bowling Green's record now stands at 10-10-1 overall and 6-8-1 in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association. They are in a modest three game losing streak.

Speaking of streaks, the Spartans have won ten games in a row, but if they are going to lose a game they might do it on the road. Overall, Michigan State is 18-3-2 with all their losses coming on the road early this year. They sit in first place in the CCHA with a league record of 12-2-2.

The Falcons though are looking forward to the chance after having fallen short over the weekend.

"It going to be almost like a revenge factor for us," team captain Dan Price said. "We know we played well enough to win and we just came up on the short end."

Michigan State is the best defensive team in the league and second offensively behind Notre Dame.

"I kind of wish (the game) could of been Tuesday," Powers said. "You still end up with a week to think about it. Let's face it. They are the class of the league."

The Spartans top gun is senior center Mike York. He is the current CCHA Offensive Player of the Week, after racking up six points over the weekend. He had a goal and an assist in the Bowling Green game.

York is the league's overall scoring leader with 14 goals and 17 assists. He is tied with Notre Dame's Ben Simon at 23 points in league play.

Bryan Adams, Shawn Horcoff and Rustyn Dolyny add to the Spartans potent offense.

MSU has the CCHA's top scorer, and it also has the best defense. Freshman goalie Joe Blackburn is back after playing for the U.S. National Junior Team. His CCHA record is 8-2-2. With him between the pipes

MSU has allowed a paltry 1.4 goals per game.

If Bowling Green is to pull the upset, they're best chance is to score first.

"One of the things you have to do against a team like that is get a little momentum," forward Chris Bonvie said. "If we get the first goal it will make them take chances and that may open up the (defense)."

BG may have to guard against a let down the next evening as they play the tenth place Lake Superior.

The Lakers are 3-9-2 in the CCHA and 4-13-3 overall. However, LSSU is coming off an upset win against Ohio State.

Powers thinks the Lakers will keep the game close.

"When you look at their record, the majority of their games have been pretty close," Powers said.

As a team Lake Superior is in the middle of the league in terms of defense. The Lakers problems come on offense where they have only managed 31 goals in their 14 games. The only team doing worse is Western Michigan.

Another problem area for Lake Superior is discipline. The Lakers average nearly 25 minutes in penalties per game.

"The games will be night and day," Powers said. "They've taken a lot of penalties and play a very physical game. Michigan State just plays good solid hockey."

Women look to Buffalo for answers, win

By DAVE TRUMAN

The BG News

After Wednesday night's 79-65 home loss to arch-rival Toledo, the Falcons find themselves 2-3 in the conference (6-9 overall), and on a slide that has seen them drop eight of their last nine games.

The question is, where is Bowling Green on that slide? BG coach Deanne Knoblauch hopes they are at the bottom and ready to hit the ground running.

"I think the Toledo game had to be a big positive, really," Knoblauch said. "That was the most intense defense that we played all year. I thought our offense showed that we were starting to get comfortable with some things. Instead of always looking for the first option, we went on and we executed very well."

Knoblauch said she was pleased with her team's offensive and defensive efforts. It was rebounding that cost them the game. She hopes the team draws confidence from the way they played against the Rockets.

The team travels to Buffalo, Saturday, to face the first year Mid-American Conference member Bulls, who are 9-5 overall and 2-2 in the MAC. UB lost Wednesday 86-77 at Kent where the Flashes have now won 31 straight.

The Bulls are lead by sophomores Mari McClure, the teams leading scorer, and 6-foot-2 center Tiffany Bell, who poured in 22 points and 10 rebounds in a recent win over Akron.

Deanne Knoblauch

Knoblauch said Franny Miller would guard McClure and Jacki Raterman would handle Bell in the post. Miller did a good job on UT's Kim Knuth Wednesday in the first half before tiring later in the game and Raterman held UT's Jennifer Markwood to 5 points Wednesday.

She has to wait with everyone else to see how her team will respond to the recent slide because this is a new experience for the team and the first year Falcon coach.

"They are not used to losing," she said. "Last year they went 21-8. You'd like to think that you're not going to have a losing mentality and that the loss makes you focus more and work harder so that it doesn't happen again. And to tell you the truth I think that that is the way it is going to go."

Gymnastics sets records

By MATTEW P. LYONS

The BG News

Coming off a record setting meet at Northern Illinois University, the Bowling Green gymnastics team (1-1 overall, 1-0 Mid American Conference) is preparing for their first meet of 1999 with Ohio State, Saturday.

Last weekend, the Falcons came away with a win over the Huskies for not only their first win of the season, but also their first victory in the MAC.

The Falcon's team score of 191.575 set a school record.

Marny Oestreg, a freshman from Norway, also had a record setting weekend in her collegiate debut. Oestreg set school records on the uneven bars (9.950), floor exercise (9.875) and all-around (38.900) against NIU.

She also set BG and MAC records on the vault (9.925) against the University of Illinois-Chicago Friday.

Looking ahead to the Buckeyes, coach Dan Connelly expects a close match. He believes he has a physically strong team that is riding high from the meet with NIU.

OSU, traditionally a strong team in the Northeast Region and the nation, also had a strong showing in their 1999 opener at Alabama with a score of 190.5.

While the Falcon's score did top the Buckeyes from this weekend, coach Connelly stressed the fact that the only way to know who is the better team, is to wait for the final score.

The Falcon's will square off against the Buckeyes Saturday at 4 p.m., at Eppler Center.

NFL Brisby, Rucci Enter Draft

FOXBORO, Mass. — New England wide receiver Vincent Brisby and offensive guard Todd Rucci were two of five Patriots players the team designated Thursday for the Cleveland Browns expansion draft.

Brisby and Rucci, both six-year Patriots veterans, along with defensive end Ferric Collins, offensive tackle Scott Rehberg and running back Sedrick Shaw, were made available to the Browns for the Feb. 9 draft in Canton.

NBA Cavs Exhibition

They still haven't had a formal practice, but the Cavaliers have scheduled their first exhibition games.

The Cavs announced Thursday that they will play host to the Detroit Pistons at Gund Arena on Friday, Jan. 29, two days after the teams meet at The Palace of Auburn Hills. Both games are scheduled for 7:30 p.m. EST.

Fans will be admitted free to the game at Gund, the Cavs said.

OVER THE WIRE Taylor is Hall finalist

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Despite off-the-field problems that have clouded his legacy as a player, Lawrence Taylor was among 15 finalists announced Thursday for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

The 10-time Pro Bowl line-backer with the New York Giants was one of four candidates to make the list of finalists in his first year of eligibility. The others are Buffalo Bills coach Marv Levy, running back Eric Dickerson and defensive end Howie Long.

They were joined by seven other modern-era finalists and seniors candidate Billy Shaw. The other finalists were coach George Allen (1966-70 Los Angeles Rams, 1971-77 Washington Redskins); defensive end Carl Eller (1964-78 Minnesota Vikings, 1979 Seattle Seahawks); punter Ray Guy (1973-86 Oakland-Los Angeles Raiders); guard Tom Mack (1966-78 Rams); tight end Ozzie Newsome (1978-90 Cleveland Browns); executive Dan Rooney (Pittsburgh Steelers 1955-present); wide receivers John Stallworth (1974-87 Steelers) and Lynn Swann (1974-82 Steelers); tackle Ron Yary (1968-81 Vikings, 1982 Rams); and defensive end Jack Youngblood (1971-84 Rams).

Taylor will turn 40 the week after the induction ceremonies.

Dolphins keep coach

MIAMI, FLA (AP) - Jimmy Johnson, on the verge of quitting, changed his mind today and will remain as coach of the Miami Dolphins. "I really believe that we're a couple of playmakers away offensively from getting that championship," Johnson said at a news conference. Johnson said former Chicago Bears coach Dave Wannstedt, a former Johnson assistant in Dallas, will join the Dolphins as assistant head coach. Johnson said the death of his mother a month ago had made him realize that he needed to spend more time with his family, especially since he was marrying his longtime girlfriend, Rhonda Rookmaaker. Dolphins owner Wayne Huizenga convinced Johnson today that hiring Wannstedt would allow him to have more time off from the 15-hour workdays during the season. The Dolphins finished the season with a 10-6 record, second in the AFC east division. After beating the Buffalo Bills in the first round of the playoffs before losing to Denver 38-3.

Nicklaus' hip surgery ends a Masters era

The Associated Press

For the first time in 40 years, the Masters will have to go on without Jack Nicklaus.

After months of hoping that exercise would strengthen his degenerative left hip, the Columbus, Ohio, native has decided that the only way to play competitively again is to have hip replacement surgery.

"While I do feel stronger and in better condition, I am not strong enough to play the best golf I possibly can to start the year," Nicklaus, who turns 59 next week, said in a statement.

The operation, scheduled for Jan. 27, means Nicklaus will miss the Masters for the first time since 1959, when he failed to make the cut as a 19-year-old amateur. Arnold Palmer and Sam Snead hold the record for most consecutive Masters at 44.

"We are sorry if Jack will not be able to compete in this year's Masters," Augusta National chairman Hootie Johnson said. "Jack is very special to Augusta National, both as an individual and a player. We wish him a speedy recovery."

Nicklaus also withdrew from two Senior PGA Tour events this month, the MasterCard Championship and the Senior Skills Game. In addition to the Masters, he is expected to miss the first two majors on the senior circuit.

"When I feel strong enough and able to play golf at a competitive level, I will continue to play tournament golf," said Nicklaus, the winner of 18 majors and two U.S. Amateur titles. "If I want to play later this year and in the future, now is the time for surgery."

A year ago, George Archer became the first player with an artificial hip to win a senior tour event.

Nicklaus, a six-time Masters champion, did not say when he might return, although later this year is not out of the question.

With his youngest son getting married Feb. 20, wife Barbara told The Palm Beach Post, "I expect to have him dancing by then."

Nicklaus was hobbling so badly at times last year that he stopped his streak of 146 consecutive majors when he pulled out of the British Open. This will be the third straight major he has failed to play.

"I can hit golf balls all I want. And I can walk," he said in October. "But the two of them — they don't like each other."

Swimmers look to turn season around

By NICK HURM
The BG News

Healthy, focused, and ready to go is the best way to describe the Bowling Green Swimming and Diving team.

"The best thing I can say about the team is that we're healthy," coach Randy Julian said. "No injuries, no shoulders, no knees, no hips. We are ready to go."

BG was fortunate enough to spend a couple days in sunny Boca Raton, Florida over the break where Julian says they had some of the best practices of the year.

"The trip to Florida helped us a lot," captain Tina Sullivan said. "We worked out for about six hours a day and it brought us closer together as a team."

The BG men post a record of 1-5 overall and 0-1 in the Mid American Conference while the women's record is similar at 2-4 overall and 0-2 in the MAC. This weekend the team will hit the road and will try to capitalize on the positives over break with two dual meets. Friday the Falcons will meet Illinois-Chicago. Saturday the orange and brown will return to league competition with a head to head battle with Northern Illinois. NIU will prove to be more of a test for the Falcons, especially on the women's side where the Lady Huskies hold a 2-1 record overall including a 1-0 record in the MAC.

The diving team will be an intricate part to BG's success the rest of the season. Both the men and women divers dove well consistently this year. Senior Jeff Allen has proven why he is a captain by good performances meet after meet. Sophmores Josh Clugston and Kris Waechter have progressed with the season. Clugston is nursing a sore back, but should be ready to dive. On the women's side, Junior Patti Wilson has spent the season battling vertigo, but had an excellent diving trip in Florida. Juniors Laura Segerlin and Ellyn Vreeland have dived well all year.

"Diving is ready," Julian said. "They've been making their contribution all year. Swimming needs to step up and support what they have been doing."

Swimming will have to step up with sound performances not only by the upperclassmen, but by the freshman also. With one semester under their belt, the freshmen are now better and know what to expect.

"I think it's going to be a more uplifting semester," captain Matt Johnsen said.

"We back off the training so we'll get more rest and we will be able to swim faster. That will take us right up to March first,
